School girl helps housing association welcome new residents to Goytre

A local school girl helped Melin Homes officially open its newest housing development in Goytre.

Leanne Wood, aged 5 from Goytre Fawr Primary school, picked the winning name for the housing association's new £1.6 million scheme. After taking part in a competition at her school, Leanne decided to name the Goytre scheme Folly View Close.

Leanne was joined by representatives from Melin, Monmouthshire County Council and other residents on Friday 29 May to cut the ribbon which marked the official opening of Folly View Close.

The Goytre development, which was part funded by a £950,000 grant from the Welsh Assembly Government, is classed as a rural exception site. As such, the 14 new homes at Folly View Close were reserved exclusively for people in housing need and who had a strong local connection with the Goytre area. Melin worked in partnership with Monmouthshire County Council to carry out the application selection process.

The new homes, available for rent, have given families and individuals like Kelly the opportunity to start a brand new life.

Kelly, 24, recently moved into a one-bedroom flat at Folly View. Prior to this she lived with her parents locally in Goytre. Kelly has suffered with long-term illness since the age of 16 which has prevented her from working. For that reason, Kelly thought it would take her years to afford her own house. Now, however, she has a home of her own thanks to Melin.

Kelly said: “Having my own home has changed my life. It’s amazing! It was a big step, but it’s given me independence and it’s lovely to be able to invite friends to my home. Also, due to the local connection criteria, I already know the majority of my neighbours which is reassuring and makes me feel secure. I would definitely recommend Melin – the application process was really easy and everyone seemed to genuinely want to help me.”

Melin’s Chief Executive Mark Gardner said: “I’m delighted that Melin is able to provide these opportunities for high-quality, affordable homes to individuals like Kelly and other local families. It’s great to know that we can help people, especially families and younger people, remain in their local area and continue to contribute to the community where they grew up.”
